Principal Consultant - Construction - open to all sector experience - City of London - £30-50000 + uncapped commission

Do you want to work for a business that puts its staff first and has over ten years of success in the construction and property sector? I am in the enviable position of representing one of London's largest and independently owned built environment specialist recruitment consultancies. They recruit across multiple disciplines but I have a HOT permanent desk with developed clients and over 60 vacancies across the residential and construction sectors.

They have success of providing quality service to these loyal clients placing site managers, finishing managers, project managers, contracts managers, construction directors and have a proven track record of delivery through expert shortlisting of roles for over 10 years.

The environment is fully collaborative creating a supportive team approach to delivery and an enjoyable work place. The team is led by an expert leader who provides constant support and new business leads and opportunities.

This hot desk within the highly successful construction team has an extensive database and all resources to attract quality candidates including the possibility of resource support from Associate Consultants focused on candidate generation.

This is a great role for a permanent recruiter with either construction experience or for a recruiter from another professional sector looking to move into the construction market. You will benefit from working across all levels of roles from assistant to director and be given full autonomy to run your desk.

This client can offer:

- Hot Desk – developed clients from day one
- Expert training on the construction industry as well as recruitment
- 10 years established brand and a track record with industry recognised brands
- Supportive and non-KPI working environment
- Clear career progression
- High uncapped commission
- Huge incentives including overseas trips and £10k prize for top performer
- Fun environment – nights out, incentives, prizes
- Inspirational leaders who care and support their teams

The company has consistently been a recognised name in the construction and property sector for over 10 years, they employ over 60 staff across multiple teams, making them one of the largest in London. They are expanding by opening new offices as well as recruiting across all teams in London for 2020.

The successful candidate will benefit from a great environment, huge support and can be making commission from day one.

I have worked with this business since inception and have placed over 30 people over the past 10 years and I can vouch for their highly supportive and hugely successful approach to the market. Not many of their competitors who have been around for as long are anywhere near their size! Candidates generally enjoy working here, make money and see their career progress.

If you are working in any professional permanent recruitment sector and are attracting to the construction sector and want to work for an industry leader then this is the opportunity for you!!
